Local Boards Earnestly Warned Not to Delay Taking Needful Precautions.

Buried with Every Honor.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—The funeral of W. Wylie, late of the G.T.R., was held this morning. The attendance was very large and in the crowd were seen many of the principal business men in the city. The shipping interests were largely represented. The procession left from the deceased's late residence at 8, and moved to St. George's church, where the funeral service was performed by the Rev. Dean Carmichael. After service the funeral moved to Bonaventure station, where there was in waiting a special car draped in mourning, inside and out. The remains were placed in one end and around the casket were arranged the floral decorations, which were numerous and very beautiful.

The Naval Train.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—The C.P.R naval train from Vancouver to Halifax with 360 sailors and 20 officers from the Pacific squadron, time-expired men, reached Montreal this morning at an early hour. Fresh supplies were put on board and the train went on its way. It will return with 420 men and 28 officers who have arived at Halifax, N. S., from England, to take places of those on the way home.

Paper Men in Council.

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—Messrs. Wilson, of the Lachute paper mills, McArthur, of the Joliette mills, Ford, of the Genford mills, and Leduce, of the Montreal Paper Mills Company, were present yesterday at a committee meeting of the Canadian Paper Makers' Association. The subject of discussion was the price of brown wrapping paper, which will hereafter be sold at a higher rate to the trade.

QUARANTINED THE CROWD.

Vancouver Visitors Promptly Corralled—Robbery at Comox.

NANAIMO, Oct. 29.—Wm. Tree and G. Tibbet, two miners who were staying at the Elk Hotel, Comox, were robbed of their watches and their loose cash on Thursday night. A young man who had been loitering about the camp, is suspected of the robbery, and when the Joan arrived at Departure Bay this individual jumped ashore and made off in the direction of Wellington as fast as possible. Constable Stephenson was telephoned the particulars of the case and he will keep his eye on the fugitive.

At the meeting of the Building Society last night Mrs. S. Gough, wife of the city clerk, was the fortunate one, taking the appropriation of $1000.

Five men, who arrived at Wellington yesterday, have been placed in quarantine. Three of them stayed at the Montreal Hotel in Vancouver, and when the house was quarantined they were out for a walk. When they returned and found what was done they immediately came to Nanaimo. A telegram arrived here to intercept them, but they had already landed and made their way to Wellington, where they lodged with two young fellows. Dr. Eberts has quarantined the whole party.

The new band lately organized are making great progress and by next summer will come out in perfect musical condition.

The electric light works were sold by auction this afternoon to Mr. Morrison of Westminster, for $25,040. Being less than half the original cost.

CITY SOLICITOR HAMERSLEY.

Vancouver Has Lost Almost Every Suit Since He Took Office.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29.—Ed. Wyllie has bonded an iron claim yielding 75 per cent., on Redondo Island, to De Wolf & Munro, who are negotiating with American capitalists. If sold the purchasers intend erecting smelters on the property.

The Board of Trade will petition the Post Office Department to put in open mails to Winnipeg seven days a week, and to grant a subsidy to a steamer carrying mails to the settlements up the coast, and the Marine Department to erect a light house at Prospect Point, Stanley Park.

The finance committee this morning discusssed the late legal expenses incurred by the city, at some length, and it is understood a proposal was made to ask A. St. G. Hamersley to resign. Since he took office almost every suit against the city has been successful, and the law expenses have been heavy. The recent litigation over the railway bonus by-law, which he prepared, is the climax which made the committee think a change advisable.

A Whole Block Destroyed.

MONTEREY, Cal., Oct. 29.—Information has just reached here that the fire which broke out in the warehouse of Alexander Bros., general merchandise dealers at San Arado, about 50 miles south of this city, destroyed a whole block. The los is estimated at $50,000.

POOR PAT PITTENDRIGH.

The Murderers Still Fugitives From Justice—A Military Funeral on Monday.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 29.—Since yesterday morning many new features in the Pittendrigh murder have come to light. It is now proved beyond a doubt that he was down at the Indian camp for no other purpose than to search for the canoe which was stolen from him some days ago, and which he and Charles Homer and young Edmonds intended to go off on a shooting expedition in this morning.

The missing link is Mary, who, the Indians affirm, shot him, but it is generally thought that it was Jimmy, Mary's husband, now in custody, who committed the murder, and sent his wife off up river to divert suspicion, and also trump up the story of an assault. Strenuous efforts are being made to arrest this woman.

Chief of Police Houston left the city this morning by way of Vancouver, as it is believed she might attempt to go up the Squamish, where Mary has many relatives and used to live. Several employees of the Royal City Planing Mills have stated that they saw her passing quickly down the river shortly after murder took place, between four and five o'clock in the evening.

Yesterday at 2 o'clock the preliminary arrangements for the inquest were concluded before Dr. McGuigan of Vancouver, in the City Hall. The jury, who viewed the body and also the spot where the murder was committed, were sworn in as follows; J. C. Armstrong, foreman; James Box, Alex. Matheson, R. Blaker, R. Phillips and J. Reid. An adjournment was taken till next Friday at 10 o'clock, but the inquest will go on on Monday if necessary.

At the post mortem examination held by Drs. Fagan, Walker and McGuigan, the bullet was found and extracted. It is a 38 calibre revolver bullet. It had passed upwards through the brain to the posterior wall of the skull there was deflected and turned downwards into the brain again. The doctors are very much puzzled to understand how, under such circumstances he could have lived so long. The wonder is that he did not die as soon as shot. The main arteries of the head were lacerated. Where the bullet entered the skull the bone was indented and greatly splintered.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon and will be military. Deceased was a popular member of number one battery, a fine rifleman, and took the greatest interest in the fortunes of the corps. There was not a more popular young fellow in Westminster, and the news of his fearful death was received here with manifestations of the deepest sorrow and horror. Captain Pittendrigh and his family are the recipients of the most heartfelt sympathy and condolence from all classes. Their grief is terrible, the dead boy being the favorite son.

STOCKTON, Cala., Oct. 29.—There was a surprise in store for those who attended the record meeting to-day. W. Wood, the pacer, by Steinway, owned by the Oakwood Park stock farm, and driven by Ed. Lafferty went on the kite shaped track in 2:07, making the world's four-year-old pacing record. The last half was made in 1:02.

BILLIARDS.

THE IVES-SCHAEFFER DISPUTE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Champion Frank Ives' wrangle over that Paris matter with Schaeffer has not yet been settled, and Ives has declared his intention of carrying the matter into the courts to enforce his demands against the Brunswick Balk company. He claims he has not received back his own money although he demanded it, and further claims $1000 salary due him.

The Associated Banks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The weekly statement of the associatad banks shows the following changes: Reserve increase, $1,561,260. Loans decrease, $3,221,100. Specie increase, $2,201,600. Legal tenders decrease, $1,599,100. Deposits decrease, $3,835,000. Circulation increase, $24,900. The banks now hold $3,893,675 in excess of the requirements of 25 per cent. rules.

Almost an Accident.

NEWARK, Ohio, Oct. 29.—Shortly before midnight last night the President's train struck some obstruction on the track a mile east of Bellaire. Several slats in the cowcatcher were broken and one of the drawheads between the compartment car "Esperanza" and the dining-car was smashed. It took over half an hour to repair the damage, but the President and other passengers were not told of the accident.

WRECK OF THE ROUMANIA.

Fearful Loss of Life in the Wild Hurricane in Which She Foundered.

Milwaukee's Great Fire—Relief for the Sufferers—Enormous Damage Done.

Miss Agnes Huntingdon and the Philadelphia Lawyer—Supt. Byrnes' Ideas.

LISBON, Oct. 29.—The Anchor line steamer Roumania, from Liverpool to Bombay, wrecked yesterday off Cape Carveir, is now breaking up, and the cargo being washed ashore. It has been learned that out of a total of 122 persons, passengers and crew on board, only seven were saved. There is no life saving apparatus in the vicinity of the wreck, and even if there had been it is doubtful if it could have been used in the teeth of the gale, amounting almost to a hurricane blowing at the time, accompanied by a high sea. A heavy sea is still running about the wreck. Several bodies, in a nearly nude condition, have been washed ashore, and the fact that they were unclothed is taken to indicate that many people on board were in their berths when the steamer struck, and had no chance to save themselves. The sea is still so high that it is impossible to tell the condition of the wreck, but the fact that all the light cargo has floated out of her and come ashore, indicates that her decks at least must be gone. As soon as the news of the wreck spread, great crowds of people, many of them from places a considerable distance inland, gathered along the shore and seized the wreckage as it came to land. Two men saw something in the water they thought would prove a valuable prize, and rushed into the surf to seize it. As they were about to grasp it they were picked up by a wave and carried out into deep water and drowned.

The Milwaukee Fire.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 29. — Morning broke on a scene of desolation such as Cream City never before witnessed. The twenty blocks yesterday covered with magnificent buildings devoted to manufacture and trade, were a mass of smouldering ruins. And where 500 residences, the homes of 3000 people stood, nothing was left save piles of blackened bricks and smoking rafters. The loss in money will not exceed $7,000,000 on which there is about $2,550,000 insurance. But the full damages, the immense shock to business, the inconvenience and positive suffering entailed upon residents and business men, cannot be computed. Every effort will be made however, to relieve the distress. Mayor Somers said this morning: "At least half of the third ward is burned away, and I think fully 3000 people are homeless. The loss cannot be estimated. We are especially thankful to the citizens of Chicago, Kenosha, Racine and Oshkosh for prompt aid in sending fire apparatus. The citizens will organize a relief committee at once." Two firemen were killed by falling walls, and two men suffocated, while hundreds in the hospital were bruised, scorched and had limbs fractured.

At a meeting of business men this morning, $50,000 was subscribed for the fire sufferers, and a committee was appointed to raise the sum to $100,000.

A Midnight Murder.

EL PASO TEX., Oct 29.—The firebell was rung this morning to call the people out to unravel, if possible, what seems to be a murder. The street near the Methodist church shows signs of having been the seen of a desperate struggle, while the ground all about was saturated with blood. A woman's hat was found and near it a handkerchief with the initials "C" in a corner. A fragment of a photograph showed on one side only the back hair of the original, but on the other side was written, "Jennie Campbell, Los Angeles, Cala." A piece of a Los Angeles newspaper lying beside it seemed to have been wrapped around the photograph before it was torn up. A lock of blood-stained hair, blonde, and just turning gray, was also discovered. None of the articles have been recognized. Jennie Campbell is not known here. Buggy tracks leading from the church towards Mount Franklin give rise to the belief that the murderer carried his victim's body away.

Disappointed the Crowd.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The marriage of Col. J. Kennedy Stout, of Spokane Falls, Washington, to Miss Ida Homan, of 65 Cooper street, Brooklyn, whose romantic courtship by mail has been described lately, did not take place last evening as announced, and hundreds of people who assembled at St. John's church expressed much disappointment. From an intimate friend of the Homan family it was learned that on account of the publicity given the courtship the wedding would not take place before Monday, and will occur at home. The triple wedding, as was announced, will not, in all probability, take place. It was said that Lloyd Lonergan, until recently a Chicago newspaper man, would wed Miss May Homan, and George Tidhall Miss Carrie Homan.

Wreck of a Good Character.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 29.—Henry D. Ryder, formerly consul for the United States here, was to-day convicted of fraud and perjury and sentenced to imprisonment with hard labor for 18 months. Ryder was arrested in July last on a charge of embezzling about 1,000 crowns, but in the course of inquiry by the authorities it came to light that Ryder had been guilty of other embezzlements, forgeries, etc., reaching back for a number of years, in his official service at Copenhagen.

Ryder's wife was an attractive young German, whom he had recently married, and became involved in the case through swearing falsely at her husband's instance, with the object of clearing him. She was also arrested, but since has been released, it being evident that she acted under the compulsion of her husband. Ryder was a veteran of the American civil war, and had an excellent record up to the time the crimes were discovered.

Rescued by Moonshiners.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 29.—Wm. Pritz, one of the murderers of Jonathan Hochtetler, the old mountaineer who was killed by moonshiners in the Somerset county mountains, was arrested to-day, but was subsequently rescued from the United States police officers by friends. Pritz has succeeded, ever since the tragedy, in eluding arrest, but Detective Fisher and his associates came upon him to-day, living in a dugout in the mountains. He fled up the mountain side, but the constables soon overtook him, and then a fierce struggle ensued. He finally surrendered after being knocked down. On the way to Somerset jail the party met a crowd of moonshiners, who overcame the police and rescued the prisoner, after badly beating the police. Pritz is now hiding in the mountains.

Cleveland's Great Theatre Burned.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 29.—Euclid Ave. opera house was totally destroyed by fire this morning. It is supposed that a defective electric light wire started the blaze. The loss on the opera house is estimated at £300,000. Insurance $250,000. The theatre was owned by H. M. Hanna, and was built about 20 years ago for John Ellesler. It was considered the finest opera house outside New York and Chicago. Hanlon Bros., whose spectacular play "Superba" occupied the stage this week, lose all their scenery and stage mechanism. The members of the company lost all their costumes.

Humanizing the Metropolitan Police.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Superintendent Byrnes, well pleased with the result of his experiment in ordering the police force not to use their clubs during the recent Columbian celebration, has gone a step farther. At his request, the police board yesterday passed a resolution taking clubs away from the men and substituting a baton, which is to be kept out of sight and only used in an emergency. The "night stick" is abolished, and a whistle takes the place of the call raps.

Could Not Find a Verdict.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—Shortly after noon to-day the jury in the Bruner case were brought into court. Upon being asked if they had reached a verdict the foreman answered in the negative and stated that there was no possibility of their doing so. Judge Wallace thereupon thanked them for their services and discharged them. The jury had been out just four days.

Shot for His Money.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—Last night two men entered the grocery store of Henry Hillebrand, an aged German, and after ordering him to throw up his hands, shot him, seriously wounding him. They then jumped into a buggy and escaped. It is believed their object was robbery, as there was about $40 in cash in the drawer at the time.

Can Bombard Dover From Calais.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The Morning Advertiser announces that the English war office has accurate designs of a new French melinite gun of terrific power, which French gunners calculate will be able to bombard Dover from Calais, and also designs for a light railway to shift the gun along the coast.

AMOROUS MISS HUNTINGTON.

The Bewitching Actress Mistakes Politeness for the Tender Passion

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—The announcement in to-day's newspapers that Agnes Huntington, the American actress, is engaged to be married to Paul de Cravoth, a New York lawyer, brought a sigh of relief from a well-known member of the Philadelphia bar, who is also a millionaire. While in this city, capturing hearts and ducats by her impersonation of "Paul Jones," Miss Huntington met H. Labarre Jayne, a well-known and highly respected lawyer, and a son of Dr. Jayne, now dead. Mr. Jayne paid her the same attention he would any lady in the walk of life in which he moved, not thinking that his courtesies would be misunderstood. Their relations had been of the most friendly character, but nothing more. Miss Huntington, however, evidently took a different view of the matter, she felt aggrieved and professed to believe that the Philadelphia lawyer had been guilty of a violation of faith. Accordingly she placed her complaint in the hands of her counsel, ex-Judge Dittenhoffer, of New York, with instructions to institute a suit for breach of promise of marriage. At this time Mr. Jayne was spending the summer in his mother's cottage at Bar Harbor. Mr. Dittenhoffer being apprised of that fact, expected to intercept him in New York on his way home, with a summons to answer in a New York court. Mr. Jayne, however, left Bar Harbor earlier than expected and thus escaped service. It was thought that he would attend the Columbian celebration in New York, and arrangements were made to serve the legal papers upon him the moment he left the Jersey City ferry boat. Meantime, however, Mr. Jayne had engaged Lawyer John D. Johnston, by whose advice he did not leave Philadelphia. He did not fear the serving of the papers in this city, because here he could properly defend himself, but his friends advised him that in case of a trial in New York, he would simply be put on exhibition with a view of torturing him into paying damages for a wrong which he had not committed. Mr. Johnston when questioned about the matter, refused to talk. He laughed at the idea of Miss Huntington having the slightest basis for a suit.

A terrible boiler explosion occurred at Clendenning's mill at Winnipeg Friday morning, completely demolishing the mill and most of the machinery. No one was hurt. The engineer, who was on the top of the boiler only a few minutes before, was called upstairs, and thus saved his life. So great was the force of the explosion that pieces of the boiler were found 100 yards away.

J. R. Booth, the well known lumberman of Ottawa, has purchased the projected Ottawa & Parry Sound railroad which will be connected with the Canada Atlantic & Ottawa Railroad and extended to Georgian Bay, where it will meet the steamers of lakes Michigan, Superior and Huron, in a direct line from west to east between Montreal and the Soo. This will lessen the water route from Chicago and the Western States to the Atlantic by 450 miles. As this overland route, from Parry Sound to Montreal, is 150 miles less than from Buffalo to New York, there will be a total saving of six hundred miles.

Some time ago it was announced that J. Castell Hopkins, of the Empire staff, he of imperial federation fame, had been appointed to a position on the editorial staff of the London Times at a salary of £2000 per annum. Mr. Hopkins first visited Winnipeg and the Pacific coast, before arranging to go to London. It now turns out that the telegram he received signed by Howard Vincent, the apostle of British fair trade, was bogus. It was concocted by some of the jealous-minded young Tories of the Albany club. Mr. Hopkins had no doubts as to the bona fides of the telegram and was preparing to leave for England when he was disillusionized. It was a low down trick of which the Albany club should feel ashamed.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Before the Caron Royal Commission on Thursday Mr. Boswell, the first witness, produced books and documents relating to the construction of the Temiscouata Railway, of which he was the contractor with J. J. McDonald. The evidence of J. J. McDonald and Frank Ross showed that neither had subscribed money for Sir Adolphe Caron or his political supporters. A. R. McDonald deposed that he did not know what became of $25,000 laid aside by the directors of the company. The principal witness, Sir A. P. Caron, was then examined, and admitted having received $20,000 from Ross & Co., but said he did not know it came from Beemer. He did not receive any money diverted from the subsidies given the Lake St. John Railway or the Temiscouata Railway, and was not aware that any money was diverted from the subsidies for political purposes.

Beauty and Comfort.

Women know how much comfort and health conduce to comeliness of person. To men beauty does not seem to call for analysis. If a woman imagines she cares more for beauty than for comfort and health, it is because she does not see that beauty is impossible without both. A Rigby Waterproof cloak is conducive to health and productive of comfort, and at the same time may be in itself an adornment to the person of the wearer. South Milwaukee in Ruins

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 28.—Fire is raging in the wholesale district of this city. At midnight all the southern section of Milwaukee is in ruins, and a dreadful conflagration is still in progress. Never in the history of the city has such a calamity befallen it. Almost the entire southern division from East Water street to the lake has been consumed. Early in the evening, when it was seen that the local firemen could not master the flames, telegrams were dispatched to Chicago, Racine and nearer cities for aid, all of which responded promptly, bringing fire engines and men to assist in the dire calamity. Shortly before 8 o'clock the various departments of the gas works exploded in quick succession, with deafening reverberations. This loss alone represents $2,000,000, which was the cost of the recently erected plant. Scores of blocks, together with hundreds of frame houses, were destroyed. Commencing at 5:40, in an oil establishment on East Water street, near the river, the flames, driven by the fearful hurricane, spread with fearful rapidity to the lake, over half a mile to the east. It is utterly impossible to estimate the loss with any degree of accuracy. Even a complete list of the big business houses cannot be obtained, while to these must be added the individual losses of hundreds of small property owners, whose houses and household goods have been destroyed. As it is, the loss will probably amount to $20,000,000 or $25,000,000.

No Honor Among Thieves.

DANBURY, Conn., Oct. 29.—Daniel MacKay and John Green were arrested here about two weeks ago for robbing St. Peter's church. After they had been in jail a few days MacKay obtained writing materials from the jailor. He was told that the rules of the jail compelled the jailor to read all papers sent by prisoners. MacKay wrote a letter and gave it to James Casey, a fellow prisoner, whose costs he paid, and Casey was discharged. When Casey was leaving the jail, the jailor searched him, but did not find the letter. Outside the jail Casey became alarmed and took the letter to the village priest, who turned it over to the police. The letter was addressed to MacKay's sister, and was a request that she send at once a set of tools to be used in escaping from jail. He specified that the tools should be "those used by the blacksmith in breaking out," and further stated that the "case was urgent, as the Massachusetts job was all fixed and was good for $2000." MacKay and Green were transferred to the Bridgeport jail last Tuesday. They had not been gone an hour when an express package was delivered for MacKay. The jailor opened the parcel and found two magazines and a bible. There was nothing suspicious in the appearance of the bible, but the jailor was certain that the tools were somewhere hidden away in the book. He and his wife examined the bible and were about to give up the search when the woman's thumb struck a slight irregularity on the inside of the back cover. She took a pair of scissors and stuck them under a tiny ridge and pried up the point of a small flat file. A corner of the cover was quickly torn off and there were revealed two files and two saws that had been bound inside the cover.

Gladstone's Feeble Health.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Owing to the repeated warnings of Sir Andrew Clarke, his physician, Mr. Gladstone has decided to limit his presence in the House of Commons during the coming session to sittings only on days when important measures are under consideration. His deputy in the leadership of the House of Commons will be Sir William Vernon Harcourt, chancellor of the exchequer. As there are authentic reports of the eye malady, from which Sir William is a sufferer, growing worse, Liberals are disturbed at the prospect of disorganized leadership. At a cabinet council arrangements will probably be made to have a substitute ready to take Sir William's place if necessary.

Hayti Ripe for Revolution.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The steamer Orange Nassau, from West Indian ports, brings news of a threatened revolution in Hayti. She brought from Port au Prince three Frenchmen, sent out of the country by President Hippolyte, accused of stirring up a revolution. Other generals want a show now, and revolutionary agitation is going on vigorously. Gen. Maigat, now living in Jamaica, is getting ready to cross over with his supporters. The time for revolution is ripe, the treasury being full from the abundant coffee harvest. The three French conspirators will demand through their Government redress for their expulsion.

The Money Question.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Saturday Review says, in discussing the money question: It is undeniable that the appreciation of gold and depreciation of silver are producing mischievous effects in commerce and finance. A growing belief exists among manufacturers that there is something in bimetalism which, if it did not effect a complete cure, would improve matters all round. Therefore, with Mr. Balfour's authority enlisted on the side of bi-metallism, the time has arrived for a reconsideration of the whole question in the light of present emergencies as well as of past experiences.

Bronchial Not Pleuro-Pneumonia

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Board of Agriculture has not yet given its decision in the suspected cases of disease among Canadian cattle in Scotland, but Edinburgh experts believe the disease is not pleuro-pneumonia, but bronchial-pneumonia, which is not contagious.

FOUNDERED IN A STORM.

An Anchor Liner Driven Ashore With Terrible Loss of Life.

LISBON, Oct. 28.—The Anchor Line steamship Roumania, Captain Young, went ashore early yesterday morning at the mouth of the Arnoges, near Peniche, and 113 of the 122 persons on board were lost. The Roumania left Liverpool last Sunday for Bombay. She carried 55 passengers, a crew of 67 and a cargo of valuable merchandise. She experienced heavy weather from early on Monday morning. On Tuesday she ran into a furious storm. All her passengers were ordered below, and were not allowed on deck again till Wednesday at noon. After a few hours' sailing, the Roumania ran into a thick fog in about 42 degrees north latitude. She proceeded at half speed, and was, it was supposed, well out from the coast. A violent storm came on after several hours in the fog.

When the storm struck her the Roumania was but a few miles from shore. The ship made little progress and the captain was unable to keep her bow to the wind. She went on the rocks almost without warning, for up to the last few minutes the ship's officers did not realize their peril.

Heavy seas broke over the ship's decks and many of the passengers, who ran on deck in a panic, were swept overboard and drowned. A life boat was cut away and an attempt was made to lower it, but the boat was swamped by the waves. For two hours further attempts were abandoned.

The storm then abated and another boat was lowered. The boat was loaded with passengers, and soon capsized, all being drowned. Two boats were started from the shore, but put back, as the men were convinced that they could not live in such a heavy sea. Another boat was lowered from the Roumania, but when half loaded was dashed against the ship's side and capsized. Fifteen persons who descended to her were drowned. Meantime wave after wave had broken over the Roumania, smashing her deck houses and ventilators, carrying away her smokestack and masts, and sweeping many of the passengers and seamen overboard. Those still left decided to wait until the storm abated further before attempting to get ashore. After an hour of suspense, the seven men and two women who had remained on board lowered the last boat.

The storm had subsided, and although obliged to ride through a heavy surf, they reached shore in safety. The two women were the only passengers saved. Captain Young is reported to be among the lost.

Cream's Ghastly Confessions.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Thomas Neill-Cream, the poisoner of dissolute girls, made his will to-day. He passed most of the day in writing and correcting it. Mr. Waters, to whom he made his confessions of the murders of numerous women in Canada, has been besieged by reporters, but has refused to give out a word until Cream has been hanged.

Fear She Is Lost.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The steamship Monte Videan, which left Montreal October 10 for London, is already four days overdue and anxiety is beginning to be felt for her safety. It is feared that the steamer may be injured or wrecked in the terrific weather reported by the vessels arriving from America. The Monte Videan belongs to the Allan Line.

Adjournment Record of the City Council Broken on the Right Side Last Night.

Report on Sewerage—Broad Street Improvements Will go Ahead as Planned.

Aldermen Hunter and Baker were absent from the council meeting last night, and business which they had on the table was not called up. Hence the meeting was considerably shortened. The adjournment was actually declared at 9:50, something totally unprecedented in the eventful history of the council of 1892. There were, also, no protests against this unheard of adjournment.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A letter was received from the sewerage commissioners stating that owing to the fact that the report of the sanitary engineer on the sewerage system was only received yesterday, and as they had only had time to hear it once they asked for further time to make a report. The commissioners were given further time to report.

F. G. Jordan, an employee of the sewerage commissioners, who was discharged, wrote asking the council to make provision for his salary. Received and filed.

W. H. Bainbridge, secretary of the B.C. Pottery and Terra Cotta Company, wrote asking for the return of a check for $2607, given when the company tendered for furnishing pipe, as the city is already in the debt of the company three times the amount. The finance committee with the city barristers will look into the matter.

A. McGregor made application for water connection for the cottage on lot 15, Terrace avenue, offering at the same time to lay the pipe himself. Referred to the water committee and water commissioner.

W. H. Snyder, of Spring Ridge, wrote asking for three or four hydrants and a hose cart for fire protection. Ald. Munn moved that a reply be sent saying that the necessity for a fire hall there was recognized, but there was no money. He said that it was planned to sell the Yates street property and erect outside fire halls. A good opportunity to sell had not come and the fire wardens could do nothing.

Ald. Bragg seconded the motion.

Ald. Humber said the hydrants would do no good at Spring Ridge, as there was no force of water. There was no money with which to do anything. The motion finally carried.

The O'Kell & Morris Fruit Preserving Company wrote asking a road giving ingress and egress to their factory, and asking what action had been taken with a previous request. The request went to the street committee.

G. Hale presented a communication asking for a drain clearing the sewage off his property, as was agreed to give him in March last when he petitioned for it with others living at Fernwood. He threatened a legal action if his request was not granted. The city engineer will report on the matter.

Philip A. Phillips, whose child contracted the smallpox, it is alleged by him, through contact with the people at 56 Pandora street, where he claims a quarantine was not established to keep people away from the place, wrote to the board, asking for $250 damages. Referred to the board of health.

Dr. Hanington presented the following report:—

VICTORIA, B.C. Oct. 21, 1892.

W. J Dowler: C.M.C.

SIR,—In reply to your letter of the 20th inst., enclosing copy of a petition said to have been signed by Frederick W. Bland and 131 others, I beg to inform the City Council that so far as the management of the Songhees reserve quarantine and the burial of the dead are concerned, the statements therein contained are entirely at variance with the facts. I can only account for a number of intelligent persons signing such a document by supposing them to be so blinded by weak-minded fear as to accept chiefly upon hearsay and surmise the most glaring falsehoods as veritable facts. The weekly reports submitted by me to my chief, the Superintendent of Indian Affairs, and, which, by his consent, are open to the inspection of the City Council, will, I think, conclusively prove to them, that so far as the Department of Indian Affairs having been lax or careless in the management of the smallpox cases (primarily received) from the city, it has by its prompt, energetic and successful action, laid the inhabitants of Victoria West and the City of Victoria generally, under a great and lasting obligation. I have the honor, etc.

(Signed) ERNEST B. C. HANINGTON,
Medical Officer, Indian Department.

Ald. Munn objected to the latter as a fling at the city, saying that the city was not in any way responsible. He said the city could thank the miserable Dominion regulations for the smallpox in the first place.

The Mayor said he heard the case came from the hop fields of Washington.

Ald. McKillican said he understood so, too, and said it looked bad for a Dominion officer to throw a slur on the city. The letter was received and filed.

Sanitary Engineer Bailey presented his monthly report. It was received and filed.

The sanitary committee presented reports announcing the payment of claims and recommending the payment of others. They were all favorably acted upon.

The committee on the Home for the Aged and Infirm presented a report prescribing certain rules and regulations for the government of the home. Received, adopted and approved.

City Assessor Northcott presented a report on the petition opposing the opening of Broad street through to Cormorant street from Pandora street. He stated that but 13 out of 33 property owners, owning less than one-half of the property opposed the opening and were therefore in a minority. The report was received and filed. The resolution of Ald. Hall granting the contract for disposing of garbage and night soil to T. F. Sinclair, was adopted. Ald. Munn alone spoke on the question. He said he favored the crematory proposition still as against the present expensive system. He said the time would come when the crematory would be built.

Ald. Hall was given leave to introduce the Broad street extension and the Broad street improvement assessment by-laws.

City Engineer Wilmot and City Assessor Northcott presented their report on the extension of Birdcage Walk, giving the assessment. The cost is placed at $41,814. The report was received, adopted and confirmed.

The council then adjourned.

MRS. W. M. POTTER.

A Providential Discovery

A LADY ACCIDENTALLY PICKS UP A BOOK WHILE GOING THROUGH THE HAMILTON MARKET.

It Pointed Out How a New Life Could Be Obtained.

The Golden Advice Was Observed And Almost Miraculous Results Followed.

Mrs. W. M. Potter, of 121 John street, North, Hamilton, Ont., will remember till the end of her life, her discovery of a little book, while passing through the Hamilton market

To many men and women, such a "find" would not have been considered important or worthy of any thought. Hundreds would have thought it a lowering of dignity to stoop for the purpose of picking up an ordinary looking book in magazine form; others would have passed and re-passed without ever seeing it.

Mrs. Potter was a sufferer; she was physically broken down, and was also suffering great mental agonies. Still, she was being led by the good and unerring hand of Providence. She had evidently been directed to the crowded and noisy market-place by some strong and mysterious agency, which she did not know, or could not describe.

We can imagine the looks of astonishment and wonder that were directed towards the suffering and almost helpless woman, by the crowds on that particular day.

Her pale and pinched face, sunken eyes, her nervous and irresolute walk and weak frame, must have drawn expressions of sympathy from friends and strangers who passed.

Heedless and unmindful of the uttered or unexpressed sentiments of men and women, Mrs. Potter passed onward guided by an unseen power.

Hope and strong faith bade her pick up the book in which was a message of life. She tremblingly laid hold of it, and took it home. With great earnestness she commenced to read the various stories of wonderful cures

She reads of one who was afflicted and tortured with the same death-dealing troubles which now bore so heavily on her. She reads how a new life—a joyous and happy existence was found

The story of the wonderful cure was related in such a truthful, simple and convincing manner, that Mrs. Potter was convinced that she had now found the true cure. She could not rest until she procured the great medicine. There was no hesitation or vain reasoning on her part; no "putting off" until a more convenient season. She was a firm believer in prompt and vigorous action; and, notwithstanding her weak condition, she hurried over to her druggist and procured a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound.

The great remedy was faithfully taken from day to day, until six bottles were used, and a glorious and complete cure effected.

Mrs. Potter's letter of testimony sent to the proprietors of Paine's Celery Compound, will do more in the way of convincing sufferers of the nature of that wonderful preparation than thousands of newspaper arguments can do. Under date of September 5th, Mrs. Potter writes as follows:—

For the benefit of other sufferers, I consider it my duty to let you know what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I was afflicted with nervousness, sleeplessness, and loss of appetite, and became so bad that I was obliged to give up housekeeping, and take a room on McNab street last March. I happened one day to go through the market, and I picked up a book, "Our Album," which I took home and read. I could see just what I wanted to cure me, and went to G. W. Spackman & Co., on Market Square, and bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and commenced to take the medicine four times a day. I used the great Compound regularly until I had taken six bottles; and, I now thank God for such a wonderful remedy. It will be my aim to recommend it to all my frieds who are suffering from any trouble. If there are doubters, let them write to me and I will convince them.

I have commenced housekeeping again; I can eat well, sleep well, work well, and am in good health, thanks to Paine's Celery Compound.

MRS. W. M. POTTER.
121 John St. North, Hamilton, Ont.

The proprietors of the world-famed Paine's Celery Compound, wish it to be distinctly understood that their mission and work is not altogether one of "money-making." They desire to offer a helping hand to all in distress, pain and suffering, and particularly to those who have exhausted their means with physicians, and in the purchasing of remedies which have failed to cure.

The Wells & Richardson Co., of Montreal, will forward a supply of their medicine to any individual who is not in a position to purchase it, provided a letter accompanies the application and signed by some clergyman, mayor, reeve, justice of the peace or postmaster, testifying that the applicant is worthy of such aid and assistance.

A skilled physician is employed by the proprietors of Paine's Celery Compound, whose work is to prescribe and give advice to all sufferers in Canada.

THE COWICHAN DOCTORS.

TO THE EDITOR:—The letter signed by Drs. Dickson and Watson, which appeared in your columns last night, must have come with a shock of surprise to everyone. The medical gentlemen concerned may be left to fight it out between them, and it would be unsafe, perhaps improper, for an outsider to interfere, but I cannot help particularly drawing public attention to the fact that Dr. Davie has appointed as Public Vaccinator a simple policeman, who, as he is also Inspector of Vaccination, will practically inspect himself, and in the event of disaster it may easily be guessed what will be the result; a liberal supply of whitewash will no doubt be on hand.

Whatever may be thought of the general question of vaccination, whether in itself it is good or bad, most people will certainly prefer to have it performed (if at all) by a competent medical man, and not by the local "peeler." Another thing is, suppose the newly appointed public vaccinator has any "misfortune" in his practice, who is going to be responsible, and who is going to pay the monetary compensation which will be demanded? Absolute power is a dangerous weapon in the hands of any man, and no man with spirit can view without alarm the advances towards a medical despotism which are rapidly being made.

ROBERT PEEL.

THAT MEMORIAL WINDOW.

TO THE EDITOR:—A memorial window for a third of a century's work in building up the Pacific diocese of the Church of England! Could anything worse have been pitched upon? But what right had the gathering in question to speak for the laity of the diocese? For one, I don't grudge the rich merchants and the wealthy men of Victoria their say or even the lead in the matter. But ought they to have the whole thing to themselves? Was the afternoon the time or the synod office (a room fitted to hold about 20) the place for such a meeting? And was notice given in all the churches a Sunday or two before?

And, sir, there is one question for which I would crave a paragraph by itself, and that is: Does this fancy of the few fall in with the Bishop's wishes as to the shape the memorial should take?

It is about time that some one should speak out against this overbearing of officialism which gives any length of tether to a handful. The belief that the canons of a voluntary association are as such binding upon the incorporated diocesan synod for an election of a bishop, and otherwise might call forth a smile if it went no farther, but when it is sought to fetter the Anglican synod of the diocese of Columbia by some two or three hundred canons of this very questionable body sterner dealing is needed. Objections at the synod are settled, not by their well groundedness, but according to the personality of the objector. "Only listen to deadmen." Should this be? Will the laity arouse themselves for their franchises and fair play for all.

Oct. 28, 1892. RED ROOD.

The merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is proven by the many wonderful cures it is accomplishing. It is just the medicine for you.

A Straight Tip IS SOMETHING WE ARE ALL AFTER.

LET ME GIVE YOU ONE!

Keep away from the "Pull Me Down" Clothing, as you don't know what moths and microbes they conceal. Did you ever get a ready-made suit that gave you satisfaction? Be candid, now! Did you not find the trousers bag at the knees and transform themselves into "HIGH WATER PANTS" inside of four hours? Have you not found the coat getting torn up the back, braid falling off, with several holes in the pockets inside of six hours? Wasn't the vest sewed together with linings that you could "blow peas through?" Oh, dear! Oh, dear! I had myself at one time a suit of those things and "feelingly know how she goes." And when I brought them back and humbly complained about the moths, etc., I was satanically asked if I expected humming birds instead of moths.

How is it that those who sell "turkey stuffin'" of that kind don't take any of their own medicine? Vell, vell! Mine frent! It's because they know better. Twenty-two conclusive proofs of this on hand. I advertise nothing but what I am prepared to back up.

English Serge and Tweed Suitings, $32, $35, $37.
Scotch Cheviots and Bannockburns, $25, $28, $30, $32, $35.

Trouserings from $5 up.

A Choice Stock of Goods with HIGH-CLASS AND CLEAN, HONEST WORK are marvels in the Tailoring trade, not to be met with every day. DO YOU CATCH ON? "A hint to the wise is sufficient."

You might just as well make up your mind to get that Winter Suit now. No use putting it off any longer. Just drop in, select your cloth and leave your measure, and its done—I guarantee everything else.

THAT COOKED REPORT.

As we expected, the Colonist has chosen to ignore completely the short discussion that took place between Chief Justice Begbie and Mayor Beaven at yesterday morning's sitting of the Royal Commission. For some reason best known to itself our neighbor is afraid to admit that the Chief Justice has described its report of Wednesday as wrong and misleading. Yesterday it was afraid to place before its readers the chief portion of the severe reflections offered by the Chief Justice on that "cooked" report, and it was cowardly enough to credit the TIMES with that small and unimportant section of his remarks which it did reproduce. As we have already observed, we can see only one reason for this latter dodge of our neighbor. It wanted to tell the Chief Justice that he was wrong and that its own report was right, but it had not the courage to do so directly. It therefore adopted the plan of pretending to believe that the Chief Justice's reflections were the TIMES' reflections, leaving itself at liberty to "talk back" at him over the TIMES' shoulders. The public need not be asked what it thinks of so cowardly a scheme. But discreditable as was our neighbor's performance of yesterday, it is altogether outdone in dishonesty and impudence by that of to-day. Not content with suppressing all utterances of the Mayor and the Chief Justice at yesterday morning's sitting, a full report of which appeared in the TIMES yesterday, the Colonist is guilty of speaking thus brazenly:—

FOILED.

The TIMES is hard to please. Its Thursday's issue contained an article featuring us for giving "an unfair and unjust" report of the proceedings of the Royal Commission. We showed from its own columns that the Colonist reporter did not do what the TIMES accused him of doing. We quoted enough of the Colonist report and our contemporary's criticism to show that there was no ground for the TIMES' impertinent lecture. Yet our contemporary is not satisfied. The gravamen of our reporter's offense was that he represented that the Commissioners had adopted Dr. Hasell's report. We showed that he did nothing of the kind. That was all that it was necessary to do. We cut the ground from under the canting intermeddler's feet. We were not at all concerned about the strictures which the Chief Justice was said to have made, but we are free to confess we were annoyed at the mean and spiteful attempt of the TIMES to injure the Colonist reporter and the Colonist newspaper. We do not think that the attempt has been a very brilliant success.

Let the above be read in the light of the indisputable facts, and the Colonist will at once appear in its true character. In the first place, as we have already pointed out, the accuser of the Colonist and its reporter was the Chief Justice, not the TIMES. The criticism from which the Colonist quoted was offered by the Chief Justice, not by the TIMES. Whatever may be its motive, the Colonist can hardly hope to gain any point by persisting in its audacious lie, for everyone knows it to be a lie of the straightest kind. In the next place the gravamen of the offence charged against the reporter by the TIMES (not the TIMES) was not "that he represented that the commissioners had adopted Dr. Hasell's report." It was that he had "taken hold of the commissioners to thrash the mayor and council," that he had "twisted the words of the commissioners," that "through blockheadedness the commissioners were made the means of annoying a respectable body of men," etc. This portion of the Chief Justice's remarks, as we have already pointed out, the Colonist did not care to lay before its readers, even under the false heading of "TIMES criticism." The Colonist ventures the assertion: "We have cut the ground from under the canting intermeddler's feet." If it be remembered that this is in reality aimed at the Chief Justice, though ostensibly at the TIMES, its richness will be appreciated. No doubt Sir Matthew Begbie will enjoy the epithet, even when bestowed on him indirectly by the Colonist. We submit, however, that it would have looked a little more manly and courageous if the Colonist had fired its shot in the open, and not from a fence corner, as it were. It would also have been very much better for our neighbor if it had not backed up its original offence by the lying and other meanness which we have felt constrained to expose. We respectfully advise it to reflect on Scott's little couplet:

Oh what a tangled web we weave
When first we practise to deceive.

JAPAN'S OFFICIALDOM.

The rapidity with which Japan has acquired the earmarks of civilization has often been noted, and from the comments made by a Tokyo correspondent lately we may conclude that the familiar art of getting away with the taxpayers' money has not been left uncultivated in the country of the crysanthemum. One portion of the following extract from the letter, namely, that relating to the superabundance of officials, would aoply, mutatis mutandis, to other countries as well as Japan. An Ottawa correspondent, for instance, might copy it with a few changes as a picture of what is to be found in Canada. He would not be able, though, to give the Government of Canada credit for such good intentions as the rulers of the Mikado's land are supposed to entertain. The letter reads as follows:—

The Government, it is rumored, is contemplating a sweeping reform. It intends to make concessions to the popular demands respecting the reduction of public expenditure, the dismissal of superfluous officials, and reform of the official organization. Retrenchment has always been a favorite theme with popular orators, and the Government has always kept it in sight, but in spite of its good intentions, the difficulty of enforcing the second item has left the work of retrenchment in a very incomplete state. As I mentioned in a former letter, there are no less than 66,000 officials whose salaries amount to 15 million yen a year, which is more than a sixth of the whole revenue. It surely can not be such a hard task to reduce the number to one-half, unless indeed newspaper-reading and smoking, which are sure to greet our eyes as we pass by a government office, form an integral part of their official duties. There are many considerations other than their fitness for their post that have led to the retention of such a large army of official "supers;" and of course many are in office simply because they have no means of livelihood as private individuals. The only qualification some of them have is the possession of well-lubricated joints which are constantly brought into requisition, as innumerable salaams, genuflections and prostrations must be daily undergone with acrobatic agility. Rheumatic subjects should abandon all hope of government employment. But the Government is determined to be no longer deceived into complaisance by these oily toadies. The Cabinet has come to a unanimous agreement to dismiss without the least compunction any official that is considered unfit for his office. The work is to be first begun in the provinces. It is proposed to dismiss secretaries who are behind the times and replace them with the younger councillors, while the post of councillor is to be abolished altogether. How far, however, these praise worthy aims will be accomplished remains to be seen.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Ottawa Free Press:—Mr. Haggart has discovered a new method of economizing in connection with the Intercolonial railway. He is busy superannuating officials and placing new men in their places. This means that the public will have two men, the active official and the superannuated one, for the same service. But then we must accept the assurance that the Minister of Railways is an economist.

The U. S. Treasury Department has given a new ruling as to what constitutes "anthracite" and "bituminous" coal. Under a previous decision coal containing a minimum of 90 per cent. of carbon has been classed as anthracite coal, and when more as bituminous coal. This minimum has now been reduced to 80 per cent. of carbon to be classed as anthracite coal. The importance of this decision is seen when it is stated that bituminous coal is subject, when imported, to a duty of 75 cents per ton, and anthracite coal is admitted free of duty.

The Seattle Press-Times having uttered the injudicious boast that "it published last Monday the first news of the projected transcontinental railway through British Columbia," it was taken to task by its neighbor, the Telegraph, as being somewhat behind the times. This for the reason that the latter "wrote up" the project editorially in June last, and again on the 11th of this month, while various other references to it have been made from time to time. Seeing that the project has been before the public for a good many years, that it was a subject for discussion and legislation in the British Columbia Legislature last spring, and that two American syndicates were seeking the privilege of building the road, none of our Seattle contemporaries have much cause to congratulate themselves on their enterprise in regard to it. But the most peculiar blunder has been committed by the Ottawa Journal, which says:—

The Dominion Government has not given a subsidy to the enterprise, and the chances are that, with the opposition of the Canadian Pacific, it will be difficult to obtain one. So far the Dominion Government has refused to grant charters to connect with American railways to the south in British Columbia, although such has been done in Manitoba and the territories as well as in other provinces. This is said to be through the opposition of the C.P.R. It is only a question of time, however, when these difficulties will disappear, and the road will be finally built.

When a Canadian paper falls into the error of supposing that the Canadian Western is seeking connection with an American road, the mistakes of American contemporaries need not be viewed with surprise.

Health Officer Huntly, of Vancouver, has made a report to the council on the operation of the crematory in that city, which will be of interest and possibly of service, to the aldermen of Victoria, who are at present wrestling with the crematory problem. Mr. Huntly says:

The figures given are absolutely correct, a daily record of such matters being kept, and the prices given being fixed by yearly contract. I will first give you statements in parallel columns of the cost of running the crematory, and of the amount of garbage there destroyed for the nine months ending September 30th, 1892:

26 loads saw dust at 30c.	$ 7 80	Day garbage loads	1373
262 cords wood at $2.85	746 70	Night soil, barrels	809
62 tons lump coal at $6	372 00	Offal, slaughter-house, loads	232
36 tons slack coal at $2.50	90 00	Hogs and sheep	10
9 months' salary operators	800 00	Horses and cows	20
		Dogs and cats	62
Total expenses for 9 months	2016 50	Quantity garbage destroyed in 9 months	2506

Being as you will readily preceive a cost of a trifle less than 80 cents a load for creamating, but in my next statement I will give you a resume of amount hauled to crematory under the present system of scavengering, thereby proving conclusively that the more garbage hauled to the crematory, the less the proportionate expense of destroying same. For three months under contract since July 1st, 1892:

73 cords of wood at $2.85	$ 208 05	Day garbage hauled, loads	686
34 tons lump coal at $6	204 00	Night soil hauled... barrels	676
10 tons slack coal at $2.50	25 00	Offal hauled, loads	73
3 months' salary of operators	300 00	Hogs hauled	4
		Horses and cows hauled	12
		Dogs hauled	12
Total cost for 3 months under contract system	$ 737 05	Quantity garbage destroyed in 3 months under new system	1463

Thus showing that while under the present system of doing the scavengering about three times as much garbage has been handled and destroyed as was done under the old system, the cost of cremating the same has diminished fully 25 per cent., and the diminution of cost in proportion to the amount of garbage hauled will continue in about the same ratio, until the capacity of your crematory is reached, which will be when about twice as much garbage is taken there as has been done during the three months ending September 30th.

Translation of the Public Notice in Chinese Reveals Startling Facts.

A Large Sum Offered for Murdering Three Chinese—The Hatchet Brigade.

The Chinese document posted on the bulletin board in Chinatown, has been translated. The translation reads: "Notice is given that Chin Liu Yung (Charles Sing), and Yip Wing, the interpreter, gave evidence in court to do away with Chinese gambling and the lotteries. If any man beats these men to death he will be paid $1500. We never go back upon our word. Whoever does the deed will be guaranteed protection till he is safe out of the city. The money can be had at Pook Lung & Company."

(Signed by) Chung Lui, Wong Bow Way, Lee Mong Kow, Lin Chee Wing.

Mon Kow and Lui Chee Wing were seen by a TIMES man this morning. Mon Kow spoke for himself and his friend Lui Chee Wing.

"We deny all knowledge of this document. Do you think that we, holding prominent positions, would jeopardize ourselves by signing our names to such a document? If we wanted to do such a deed, we would do it secretly and not in such a foolish manner as posting up a public writing. We have not seen the papers. When we were convinced that the document is as stated, we shall immediately do all in our power to aid the police in finding out the writer. We ourselves will offer a reward."

The police were roused last night by two Celestials, who, out of breath, came running into the office of chief of police and told the startling story that the Chinese Highbinders were murdering a Chinaman named Chun Sun, who attempted to gain admittance to one of their meetings. Sergts. Hawton and Levin and five constables armed themselves with firemen's hatchets and marched into Chinatown. The police had been told the unfortunate Celestial victim was carried behind strong bars, and that axes would have to be brought into play to release him. The police visited the Highbinders' quarters, but no Chinaman was located. And up to the hour of going to press the whereabouts of Chun Sun remains a mystery. Chief Sheppard throws cold water on the whole affair. He says that he does not take any stock in the murder story.

EXTENDED THE TIME.

The City to Have Use of the Jubilee Quarantine for Another Two Months.

The directors of the Jubilee Hospital last evening decided to allow the city to use the hospital quarantine station until the end of the year. This question was brought up at last evening's meeting by the reading of a communication from the City Council, asking the directors to allow the city the use of the station until the end of the year. The communication caused a great deal of discussion, and the request was finally granted.

A bonus has been granted to Miss Mouatt for her services during the recent smallpox outbreak. A resolution was also passed commending Miss Mouatt's services.

Miss McMillan, now of Kingston, who is to take Miss Mouatt's place as matron, will arrive here on the 26th of November. She is highly recommended by eastern doctors and hospital directors, in fact she is considered one of the first matrons in Canada.

Accounts amounting to over $3000 were passed and a number of reports received and adopted.

At 10:30 solemn pontifical high mass will be celebrated. The officers of the mass are: Bishop Lemmens, celebrant; Father Hylebos, of Tacoma, assistant priest. Deacons of honor, Father Demanez, of Seattle and Father Morgan, Westminster; deacons of the mass, Father Nicolaye and LeTerme; master of ceremonies, Father Van Nevel. Father Mandart assistant priest and Father Gross of North Carolina, and Father Fay, Vancouver, deacons of honor to Archbishop Gross. Father Althorp, Juneau, and Father Donckele, Kuper Island, chaplains to Bishop Lootens. Archbishop Gross will preach at mass and at vespers.

Gave his Pursuers the Slip.

The young man who robbed William Free and George Tibbett at the Elk Hotel, Comox, on Wednesday night is supposed to be in Victoria. He left Comox on the Joan, Thursday morning, and was followed by two friends of the men who were robbed. He left the boat at Wellington and the two men followed him ashore. He gave them the slip, however, in the hotel there. While they were drinking at the bar he slipped out the back way and escaped them. He then, it is almost certain, came to Victoria. The supposed thief is well known at Comox where he is very well connected, and it is very doubtful, if he is captured, that he will be prosecuted. The two men who followed him planned to have him arrested when a properly authorized officer was reached.

A Big Load.

The steamer Yosemite brought a big load of freight over from the Mainland this morning. The cargo consisted of 425 bales of hay and straw, four carloads of wheat and flour, 39 head of cattle, 14 horses, 26 hogs and a lot of other merchandise. She arrived this morning at 8 o'clock.

Every One Attended.

At the last drill of No. 3 battery B.C. B.G.A every member was present. This good result was brought about by the fines imposed on two absentees last week. The captains of all the batteries are anxious to make a good showing at the fall inspection and therefore they have to be strict with the men.

His Honor's Matinee.

In police court this morning, William Carell, charged with assaulting David McNeill, was dismissed. The prosecutor did not appear. The Michigan Lumber Company was convicted of selling lumber without a license. The company was not represented in court. The fine was $100; license $50 and $5 costs. In default, distress or a month's imprisonment.

New Buoys.

The Dominion steamer Quadra arrived in port yesterday afternoon. The trip has been considerably delayed by fog, Capt. Walbran reporting very thick weather as far northward as Departure Bay, where the Quadra called for coal. Two buoys marking the shoal off Sidney wharf were laid down on the outward cruise, and another spar buoy was placed on the rock off Entrance Islet, Stuart Channel, the old buoy having disappeared.

A Canadian Adjudicator.

The announcement is made by the Government that the president of the Ontario Association of Architects, Curry, will adjudicate on the new government building plans. Mr. Curry, who resides in Toronto, is on his way west. Mr. A. T. Taylor, of the Government building, and Commissioner Gore will assist. It looks as though the TIMES interviews calling for a Canadian adjudicator had borne good fruit.

Rough on the Captain.

"Capt. Austin, of the British bark Ordovik, is in trouble, which he no doubt realizes by this time."

The foregoing sentence headed an item in yesterday morning's Colonist, referring to a suit which was to be brought against Captain Austin. It seems rather hard to say that Captain Austin is "in trouble, which he no doubt realizes by this time," as word was received about six months ago that the captain had crossed the great divide. The news was received by F. M. Yorke.

The Delmonico Music Hall.

Victoria is to have a music hall, modeled after the London places of amusement of that description. It is to be in the place at present occupied by the Delmonico Restaurant, and is to be known as the Delmonico Restaurant and Music Hall. Mons. Escalet is starting the place. As is known, his present business is to be moved to the new Driard Hotel. Immediately after removal the place will be put in order for the music hall and a platform erected. Mr. Escalet intends to put in a lunch counter there, and run a first-class restaurant annex with the new place. A lady orchestra and four lady ballad singers will open the hall on Nov. 14th. There will be no boxes or wine rooms in connection with the hall, and every thing will be conducted in an orderly manner. A general admission of 25 cents is to be charged. A place of this kind run on the ideas outlined above is, according to experienced amusement patrons, needed in Victoria and will pay.

THE SMALLPOX COMMISSION.

Dr. Jones, of the Warspite, Gives Evidence—Value of Vaccination.

Dr. Jones, of H.M.S. Warspite, was called as a witness this morning. He had the opportunity of studying vaccination with the public vaccinators of London. The public vaccinator always vaccinated children by arm to arm vaccination; healthy children first being vaccinated with calf lymph, and other children being vaccinated from them. He had known of one case of disease to arise from arm to arm vaccination, and that was a clear case of carelessness. It would hardly be eligible for the public vaccinator to vaccinate with calf lymph, as it is so often unsuccessful and the after results are more severe. It is very easy to see whether a child is diseased or not, and of course if he is diseased another child would not be vaccinated from him. Arm to arm vaccination is certainly preferable. If smallpox breaks out everybody should be vaccinated. To give the anti-vaccinationists a voice in the management of the Metropolitan hospitals, several nurses who had not been vaccinated were appointed. They took smallpox, while the nurses who had been vaccinated did not. When he was at Coquimbo last year there was an outbreak of smallpox. Among the 1600 people in the town there were two hundred deaths in two weeks. This was an unvaccinated community. Among the one hundred English residents in the town, most of whom had been vaccinated, but three took the disease, and one of them was an unvaccinated child. It would be very impracticable and very expensive to keep a vaccine farm in this province. A doubtful case of any infectious disease should be reported to the health officer. In England the health officer is nominated by the corporation, and the Government, if they accept the nomination, pay half the officer's wages. Measles are more responsible for death among children than any other disease. It is not necessary to treat people recently vaccinated as suspects. Dairies should be kept under inspection to prevent the spread of disease. If all the world were of one mind regarding vaccination, smallpox would be stamped out. Measles could also be stamped out in a community if proper precautions were taken. The water supply of a city should be pure. If the houses on the edge of Beaver or Elk lake drain into the lakes, they should be removed, as if a case of disease was in one of the houses, it might spread through the city.

After hearing the evidence of R. Carter on the method used to fumigate buildings and clothing the commission adjourned untill 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning, when they will sit at Vancouver.

The Doctor Tripped Up.

Quite a few objections were raised at last night's meeting of the city council because Dr. Hannington went out of his way in his letter to the council to state that the smallpox cases which occurred on the Indian reserve some weeks ago were "primarily received from the city." That statement is said to be incorrect, and it is further stated that Dr. Hannington in his reports to the Indian department told quite a different story. In one of these reports the doctor gave the statement of the Indian who was first stricken with the disease. The statement was to the effect that he (the Indian) had come over from Seattle on the City of Kingston, that while in Seattle he had visited one of the health officers, who told him that he had smallpox and that he had better go to Victoria, which he did. Subsequently he and three of his family died of smallpox on the reserve, they being the only ones who contracted the disease. How Dr. Hannington in the face of this report of his own making can say the disease was "primarily received" from the city the council last night did not quite understand.

McFee of Dublin.

John T. Kelly, a comedian of acknowledged ability in his own line of Celtic impersonations, comes to the Victoria theatre on next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, in his new comedy "McFee of Dublin." The play was written by Chas. T. Vincent and Mr. Kelly, and it has been one of the most pronounced hits of the present year. Mr. Kelly has a part in the new comedy to which he is admirably suited and he is supported by the best company he ever had, including the charming English soubrette, Florrie West, a well-known prima-donna, and the clever young comedian, Harry Kelly, and many others. The production will be beautifully staged and costumed and will be perfect in every detail.

Heart Disease the Cause.

A coroner's jury, of which A. J. Rowbotham was foreman, held an inquest this afternoon on the remains of Captain Shaw, who was found dead on board the schooner Venture. Dr. A. T. Watt, who held a post mortem examination on the body of the deceased, testified that Shaw had been suffering from heart disease, which caused death. A verdict was brought in accordingly. The funeral will take place to-morrow, Sunday, at 4 p.m.

Bishop Hills' Illness.

Bishop Hills was taken suddenly ill to-day, and will, therefore, not be able to preach his farewell sermon to-morrow morning, as he had intended. Canon Beanlands will preach in the morning at Christ Church cathedral, and Rev. J. B. Hewetson in the evening.

The Medical Health Officer.

The Board of Health met this morning at the City Hall. The resignation of Health Officer G. L. Milne, M. D., was considered, but no action was taken. It is not unlikely that the doctor will continue in office for some time yet, while the Board makes other arrangements. An advertisement was drawn up and will be found in another column of the TIMES.

A REVIEW OF HIS TRAVELS.

Dr. Talmage Gives an Account of His Observations in Foreign Lands.

The Terrible Famine in Russia—The People Grateful to the Americans.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 16.—Unusual interest attached to the sermon preached by Rev. Dr. Talmage this forenoon, it having been announced that he would devote the entire discourse to a review of his summer's journey. The great Tabernacle building was crowded early by an expectant audience. Professor Brown, the organist, during the service rendered the Russian national air, the English national air and our own national air. Among other hymns sung was—

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty.

The subject was, "Observations in Russia and Great Britain," the text selected being Psalm cxxxix, 9, "If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me."

What an absurd book the Bible must be to a man who has no poetry in his soul! "Wings of the morning." What kind of a bird is it, and how long are its wings and of what color? Ah, some of us have seen and felt its wings. They are golden. They are buoyant. They are swift. They are widespread. The 15th of last June I took "the wings of the morning" and started for Europe. June 20, on "the wings of the morning," I started from Liverpool. July 12, on "the wings of the morning," I entered Germany, the land of Martin Luther and many of that ilk, living and dead.

On "the wings of the morning" I entered St. Petersburg, Russia. On "the wings of the morning" I entered Moscow. On "the wings of the morning" I entered the palaces of Russia, greeted by the emperor and empress, surrounded by a lovely brood of princes and princesses. On "the wings of the morning" I entered Inverness, the capital of the Scottish highlands, country of Robert Burns and Thomas Chalmers—the one for poetry, the other for religion. Sept. 21, on "the wings of the morning," I entered the finest haven of all the earth—New York harbor—and looked off toward the most interesting place I had seen in three months—1 South Oxford street, Brooklyn.

Oh, I like "the wings of the morning." I am, by nature and by grace, a son of the morning. I think I must have been born in the morning. I would like to die in the morning. I have a notion that heaven is only an everlasting morning. In the summer of 1892 my text was fulfilled to me again and again. "If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall thy hand lead me." Yes, he led me as he always has led me since I took my first walk from the cradle to my mother's lap at Bound Brook until this pulpit where I now stand, and he will lead me until I stop for all time about three miles out yonder, where the most of you will be my fellow slumberers.

THE CRY FOR RELIEF.

You all know why I went to Russia this summer. There are many thousands of people who have a right to say to me, as was said in the Bible parable, "Give an account of thy stewardship." Through The Christian Herald, which I have the honor to edit, we had for months, in publisher's, in reportorial and editorial column, put before the people the ghastly facts concerning twenty million Russians who were starving to death, and subscriptions to the relief fund had come by letters that seemed not so much written with ink as with tears, some of the letters practically saying, "We find it hard to get bread for our own families, but we cannot stand this cry of hunger from beyond the seas, and so please to receive the inclosed." And others had sent jewels from their hands and necks saying, "Sell these and turn them into bread." And another letter said: "Inclosed is an old gold piece. It was my mother's. She gave it to me and told me never to part with it except for bread, and now I inclose it." We had gathered thirty-five thousand dollars in money, which we turned into three million pounds of flour.

When I went down to the board of trade at Chicago and left five thousand dollars of the amount raised with a prominent flour merchant, taking no receipt and leaving all to him to do the best thing, and returned, it was suggested that I had not done things in a business way. How could we know what sort of flour would be sent? There are styles of flour more fit for the trough of the swine than the mouths of hungry men and women. Well, as is customary, when the flour came to New York it was tested, and we found indeed they had cheated us. They gave us better flour than we had bought. I bought in Chicago fine flour, but they sent us superfine. God bless the merchants of Chicago!

Now we know nothing about famine in America. The grasshoppers may kill the crops in Kansas, the freshets may destroy the crops along the Ohio, the potato worm may kill the vines of Long Island, the rust may get into the wheat of Michigan, yet when there has been dreadful scarcity in some parts of the land there has been plenty in other parts. But in districts of Russia, vast enough to drop several nations into them, drought for six consecutive years has devastated, and those districts were previously the most productive of all the empire.

It was like what we would have in America if the hunger fiend somehow got out of hell and alighted in our land, and swept his wing over Minnesota and said, "Let nothing grow here," and over Missouri and said, "Let nothing grow here," and over New York state and said, "Let nothing grow here," and over Ohio and Georgia and Massachusetts and Pennsylvania and Nebraska and Dakota and the Carolinas and said, "Let nothing grow here," and the hunger fiend had swept the same withering and blasting wing over the best parts of America in the years 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891 and 1892, and finally all our families were put on small allowance, and we all had risen from the table hungry, and after awhile the children had only quarter enough, and after awhile only one meal a day, and after awhile no good food at all, but a mixture of wheat and chaff and bark of trees, and then three of the children down with hunger typhus, and then all the family unable to walk, and then crawling on hands and knees, and then one dead in each room, and neighbors, not quite so exhausted, coming in to bury them, and afterward the house becoming the tomb, with none to carry the dead to more appropriate sepulcher—whole families blotted out.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND SAVED.

That was what occurred in Russia in homes more than were ever counted, in homes that were once as comfortable and happy and bountiful as yours or mine, in homes as virtuous as yours or mine, in homes where God is worshiped as much as in yours or mine. It was to do a little something toward beating back that archangel of wretchedness and horror that we went, and we have now to report that, according to the estimate of the Russian famine relief committee, we saved the lives of 125,000 people. As at the hunger relief stations the bread was handed out—for it was made into loaves and distributed—many people would halt before taking it and religiously cross themselves and utter a prayer for the donors.

Some of them would come staggering back and say, "Please tell us who sent this bread to us." And when told it came from America they would say: "What part of America? Please give us the names of those who sent it." Ah, God only knows the names of those who sent it, but he certainly does know, and many a prayer is going up, I warrant you, day by day, for those who sent flour by the ship Leo. Perhaps some of us at our tables rattle off a prayer that may mean nothing, although we call it "saying grace," but I warrant when those people who received the bread which saved their lives "said grace" it meant something.

Our religion may not demand that we "cross ourselves," but I have learned that while crossing one's self in some cases may mean nothing but mere form I believe in most cases it means, "Oh, thou of the suffering cross of Calvary, have mercy on me and accept my gratitude." Prefer your own form of religion by all means, but do not depreciate the religious forms of others. From all I can learn there were several good people before we were born, and I rather expect there will be several left after we are dead. I have traveled in many lands, but I tell you plainly, as I told Emperor Alexander III in the palace at Peterhoff, that I had never been so impressed with the fidelity to their religion of any people as by what I had seen in Russia, and especially among her public men.

I said respectfully to a Russian when I saw him cross himself, "What do you do that for?" "Oh," he said, "when I do that I always say, 'God have mercy on me!'" I hold in my hand something very suggestive. What does that black and uncomely thing look like? That is what is called hunger bread from Russia; that is what millions of people lived on for months before help came from England, Scotland, Ireland and America; that is a mixture which seems to have in it not one grain of sustenance. It is a mixture of pig weed and chaff and the sweepings of stables. That is something which, if dropped in the street, your dog or cat might sniff at, but would not eat. That was the only food on which millions of men and women lived.

You must look at that hunger bread of Russia before you can get proper appreciation of what an attractive and beautiful thing a good loaf of bread is. It is so common to us we cannot realize its meaning. Stop and look at it in a bakery window or see it on your family table—I mean an honest loaf of bread, white as a ball of packed snow, with a crust brown as the autumnal woods, and for a keen appetite more aromatic than flowers—a loaf of bread as you remember it in childhood, when the knife in the hand of your father or mother cut clean through, from crust to crust, and put before you, not a quarter of a slice or a half a slice, but a full, round slice, and another and another, just suited to a boy always ready to eat and for the most time hungry, even in a well supplied house. I remember and you remember, if you had a healthy childhood, just how it tasted. My! My! Plum pudding does not taste as good now as that plain bread then. It was then bread at the table, and bread between meals, and bread before breakfast, and bread before going to bed.

THE STAFF OF LIFE.

Why does not some poet ring a canto on a loaf of bread, or some modern Raphael paint it, or some historian tell its history? Noticed all over like wedding cake, or dotted like many articles of food, pretentious and with fantastic ingredients, but that grandest product of the earth; that richest yield of the flour mill; that best benediction of a hot oven—a God given loaf of bread. But the rhythm of it, the luxury of it, the meaning of it, the benediction of it, the divine mercy of it, only those know who have seen a famine. No wonder Christ put this food into the sacrament and said of a broken loaf of bread, "This is my body." Thank God that I ever saw that transcendent and compact kindness of the infinite God—a loaf of bread. And it was our joy this summer to hand over a shipload of material for gladdening many thousands of Russians with such a beatitude.

But I have been asked by good people in Great Britain and America, again and again, Why did not the prosperous people of Russia stop that suffering themselves, making it useless for other nations to help? And I am always glad when I hear the question asked, because it gives me an opportunity of explaining. Have you any idea what it requires to feed twenty million people? There is only one being in the universe who can do it, and that is the Being who this morning breakfasted sixteen hundred million of the human race. The nobility of Russia have not only contributed most lavishly, but many of them went down and staid for months amid the ghastliness, and the horror, and the typhus fever, and the smallpox that they might administer to the suffering.

I sat at the dining table in the house of one of our American representatives beside a baroness who had not only impoverished her estates by her contributions to the suffering, but who left her own home and went down into the worst of the misery, until prostrated with fever, then reviving and toiling on until prostrated by the smallpox. She had come home to get a little strength, and in a few days she was going down again to the suffering districts, and she commissioned me to execute in America a literary enterprise by which she expects with her pen more money, all of which is to go for bread to those who lack it. Then there are the Bobrinskies. They are of the nobility—not only the nobility of earth, but the nobility of heaven. You know we have in America certain names which are synonyms for benevolence—George Peabody, James Lenox, William E. Dodge, Mr. Slater and so on. What their names mean in America Bobrinski means in Russia.

The emperor has made larger contributions toward this relief fund than any monarch ever made for any cause since the world stood, and the superb kindness written all over the faces of emperor and empress and crown prince is demonstrated in what they have already done and are doing for the sufferers in their own country. When a few days ago I read in the papers that the emperor and empress, hearing an explosion, stopped the royal rail train to find out what accident had occurred, and the empress knelt down by the side of a wounded laborer and held his head until pillows and blankets could be brought, and the two wounded men were put upon the royal train to be carried to a place where they could be better cared for, I said to my wife, "Just like her."

When I saw a few days ago in the papers that the emperor and empress had walked through the wards of the most virulent cholera, talking with the patients, shaking hands with them and cheering them up, it was no surprise to me, for I said to myself, "That is just like them." Any one who has ever seen the royal family will believe anything in the way of kindness ascribed to them, and will join me in the execration of that too prevalent opinion that a tyrant is on the throne of Russia. If God spares my life I will yet show by facts beyond dispute that the most slandered and systematically lied about nation on earth is Russia, and that no ruler ever lived more for the elevation of his people in education and morals and religion than Alexander the Third. So I put all the three prayers together—God save the president of the United States! God save the queen of England! God save the emperor and empress of Russia!

I will, whether in sermons or lectures I have not yet decided, show that nineteen-twentieths of all the things written and published against Russia are furnished by men who have been hired by other countries to "write up" or rather write down Russia, so as to divert commerce from that empire or because of international jealousies. Russia being larger than all the rest of Europe put together, you can see how natural would be the jealousies. I know of two prominent European newspapers that keep men on salaries to catch up everything unfavorable to Russia and magnify the incident. And the stereotyped stories of Siberian cruelty in one case out of a hundred is true, but in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases they are fabrication. And in the one case as soon as it is reported the official is discharged.

They who have been sent "to write up" Russia and Siberia have done as that man would do who, sent to "write up" New York, should write up the slums as a specimen of what New York is, or, sent to write up the American congress, should write up some depraved politicians as a specimen of American statesmanship, or, sent to write up the sanitary condition of this country, should send a kodak picture of all the warts and carbuncles he could find as a specimen of American health. I believe I can reverse the opinion of any man antagonistic to Russia who will give me an honest hearing, as my own opinions have been reversed by what I recently saw and heard.

Before passing to the other field of my summer observation I give you one little specimen of the falsehoods about Russia. I stood in London with my tickets for St. Petersburg, Russia, in my pocket. It was two o'clock in the afternoon, and at three o'clock I was to take the train. An American physician came in and said, "You certainly are not going to Russia." I said, "Why not?" Then a morning paper was shown me, saying that in St. Petersburg there were two thousand cases of virulent cholera; the city had been divided into hospital districts, and the doctors were at their wits' end what to do with the number of patients. The population was flying in terror. It was almost as bad in Moscow.

While reflecting on these accounts two messages arrived from other friends protesting against the foolhardiness of my rushing into the presence of two thousand cases of cholera in one city. Of course I halted. I halted for four days. Meanwhile a telegram from St. Petersburg encouraged me to go. I went. There was not a single case of cholera in St. Petersburg or Moscow, and there was not a single case in either city until four weeks after I left those cities. But the continental falsehood had done its commercial errand. Tens of thousands of Americans and Englishmen who proposed to summer in Russia turned in other directions.

At the large hotel in St. Petersburg at which I stopped, though capable of holding five hundred guests, and months before every room and every hallway and every mattress and every pillow had been engaged by telegraph by sightseers, all the orders were canceled, and instead of five hundred guests I should think about thirty, and that including our party. And so it was in all the hotels in northern Russia, and the subtraction of that amount of commercial profit from those cities you may imagine. But that whole subject of systematic fabrication I adjourn to some other hour. Yet I must tell you of a picture of pathos and moral power impressed upon my mind, so that neither time nor eternity may efface it.

The ship Leo swung to the docks a few miles below St. Petersburg loaded with flour from America. The sailors on board huzzaed as they came to the wharf. From a yacht on which we had descended the river to the sea the prominent citizens of St. Petersburg disembarked. The bank was crowded by prosperous citizens, who stood on the wharf, and back of them by poor laborers, who had come down to offer their services free of all charge for the removal of the breadstuffs from the ship to the imperial freight train that took the flour to the interior free of charge. While we stood there the long freight train rumbled down to the docks, the locomotive and each car decorated with a flag—the American flag and the Russian flag alternating.

Though a flag to some eyes is only a floating rag, you ought to see how the American flag looks five thousand miles from home. It looked that day like a section of heaven let down to cheer mortal vision. Addresses of welcome and responses were made, and then the work began, the only contest being who should lift the hardest and be most expeditious. From ship to rail train. From rail train to kneading board. From kneading board to oven. From oven to the white and quivering lips of the dying. Upon all who, whether by contribution small or large, helped make that scene possible may there come the benediction of him who declared, "I was hungry and ye fed me."

GREAT MEETINGS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

But I must also give a word of report concerning my other errand—the preaching of the Gospel in Great Britain last summer. It was a tour I had for many years anticipated. With the themes of the Gospel I confronted more people than ever before in the same length of time—multitudes after multitudes, and beyond anything I can describe. The throngs in all the cities were so great that they could be controlled only by platoons of police, so that none should be hurt by the pressure, each service indoors followed by a service for the waiting throngs outdoors, and both by handshakings to the last point of physical endurance.

From the day in which I arrived at noon in Liverpool, and that night addressing two vast assemblages, until I got through my evangelistic journey, it was a scene of blessing to my own soul and I hope to others. I missed but three engagements of all the summer, and those from being too tired to stand up. At all the assemblages large collections were taken—the money being given to local charities, feeble churches, orphan asylums or Young Men's Christian associations—my services being entirely gratuitous. But what a summer! There must have been much praying here and elsewhere for my welfare, or no mortal could have gone through all I went through.

In every city and town I had messages poured into my ears for families in America. Oh, sons of Scotchmen, Englishmen, Welshmen and Irishmen, there are hearts on the other side of the sea beating in affection for you and praying for your present and eternal welfare. They wanted me to give you their love, and here it is by the wholesale, for I cannot give it by retail. Disappoint not the old folks on the other side the Atlantic. You will probably never see them again in this world. Their hair is whitening, and their step is not as firm as when you saw them last. So live that you may meet them in heaven. Write home often, and while you know they are praying for you, do not forget to remember in your prayers those who were your first friends, and friends than whom you will never have better—I mean your old father and mother.

By the memories of the old Scotch kirk, where you were baptized, and of the English fireside, by which you played, and of the Welsh hills and valleys, among which you roamed, and the old homes on the banks of the Tweed and the Shannon and the Clyde, I charge you be honorable and true and Christian. You have good ancestral blood in your veins. Prove yourself worthy. It seems to me that the Gospel is making mighty strides over there.

Only one thing I saw in the chapels and churches I did not like. That is a lack of appreciation of each other as between the national church and the dissenters. Now each is doing a great work that the other cannot do. God speed them all—they of the episcopacy and they of the dissenters! Some need the ritual of the national church and others the spontaneity of the Wesleyan. In the kingdom of God there is room for all to work and each in his own way. Some people are born Episcopalians and others Methodists and others Baptists and others Presbyterians, and do not let us force our notions on others.

As for myself, I was born so near the line that I feel as much at home in one denomination as another, and when in the Episcopal church the liturgy stirs my soul so that I cannot keep back the tears, and it overwhelms me with its solemnity and its power. When in an old fashioned Methodist church the responses of "Amen!" and "Hallelujah!" lift me until, like Paul, I am in blessed bewilderment as to "whether in the body or out of the body, God knoweth." And as for the Baptists, though I have never been anything but sprinkled, I have immersed hundreds and expect to immerse hundreds more in the baptistry under this pulpit where I now stand.

NO DOUBTFUL DISPUTATIONS.

What is the use of controversy about anything except how we shall keep close to the cross and do the most for helping people for this world and the next? May there come in England more cordiality between the national church and the dissenters. Although I would be called a dissenter there, almost my first step in England was into a banqueting hall—the lord mayor's banquet, given to the bishops and high officials of the national church, the great and good and genial archbishop of Canterbury at their head, and a more magnificent group of folks, intellectually and spiritually, I never got among, and I found that though we had never met before the archbishop and myself were old friends. But all up and down Great Britain I found a multitude that no man can number enlisted for God and eternity, and I tell you the kingdom is coming.

If the pessimists would get out of the way—the people who snivel and groan and think everything has gone to the dogs or is about to go—I say if these pessimists would only get out of the way, the world would soon see the salvation of God. Christianity is only another name for elevated optimism. Was Isaiah an optimist? See his deserts incarnadined with red roses and snowed under with white lilies and his lamb asleep between the paws of a lion. Was St. John an optimist? Read the uplifting splendors in the Apocalypse and the hallelujah chorus with which the old book, which they cannot kill, closes.

The greatest thing I can think of would be to have a triple alliance of America, England and Russia in complete harmonization, and then to have upon all of them come a deluge of the Holy Ghost. Let the defamation of other nations cease. Peace and good will to men! For that glorious consummation, which may be nearer than we think, let us pray, remembering that God can do more in five minutes than man can do in five centuries. If the consummation is not effected in our day I shall ask the privilege of coming out from heaven a little while to look at this old world when it shall have put on its millennial beauty. I think God will let us come out to see it at least once in its perfected state before it is burned up.

I should not wonder if all heaven would adjourn for an excursion to this world to see how a shipwrecked planet was got off the breakers and set afloat again amid the eternal harmonies. Meanwhile let us do all we can to make it better, and it will somehow tell in the final result, though it be only a child's sob hushed, or a trickling tear wiped from a pale face, or a thorn extracted from a tired foot, or a sinful soul washed white as the wool. May God help us to help others! And so these lessons of gratitude and sympathy and helpfulness and vindication I have brought you on the wings of this morning.

Rev. Sylvanus Lane

Of the Cincinnati M. E. Conference, makes a good point when he says: "We have for years used Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family of five and find it fully equal to all that is claimed for it. HAUNTS OF THE POET GRAY.

The Poet-Traveller Among the Familiar Scenes of the Famous "Elegy."

Special Correspondence of the TIMES.]

STOKE POGES, England, Oct. 12.—If the splendid scenic and historic environment of Stoke Poges, the old home and chief haunt of the poet Gray, is fine and stirring, the place itself is one likely to awaken the purest emotions of contemplation and delight. There are no more beautiful park and farm landscapes to be found in England than in Buckinghamshire, which include the velvety reaches and splendid park and primeval forests roundabout Windsor Castle.

One may only fancy it, but it seems that even the carts upon the highways are more noiseless here. Cotter and plowboy, farmer or grimy potter from the near kilns, country wench or lassie with rosy cheeks, appear to move from house to house or field to field, as if in pleasant mood. Kine in fields, dogs at doorways, sheep in meadows, all browse or nod as in sleepy solstice time, while the birds, though no less melodious here, tune their lays as if hesitant of breaking, even with joy, the sweet and tender spell. All this, too, is intensified by the peculiar retirement of the central scene of the "Elegy"—the Stoke Poges Church and churchyard. Neither is at the wayside, as is usual with English country memorial churches. Unless first rightly directed you would pass them many times upon the old north and south highway from Slough. They lie to the west of the road, hidden by dense masses of trees. Opposite are pleasant fields, with here and there willow bordered runlets of wimpling water or shadowy pools, where in summer are—

The kine, breast deep in the shallows at noon,
When the flushed sun waits in saffrony skies, threadings of lanes and highways, with dainty vistas stretching to the horizon between, and, if the trees are wind whipped enough in autumn time, glimpses of the somber brown of Eton's embattled walls, with the great Round Tower of Windsor a gray silhouette beyond.

Overarching trees and luxurious creepers shut out the Stoke Park road to church and manor house completely. Leaving this you enter a path leading over a little hillock through a tangled maze of coppice, and come at the end of perhaps a hundred yards to the huge monument erected to the memory of Gray, in 1799, by John Penn, grandson of William Penn, the then lord of Stoke Manor. The design was by the noted James Wyatt. It consists of a sarcophagus of heroic size supported on a lofty square freestone pedestal—the whole perhaps forty or fifty feet above the sward, which is beautifully interspersed with flowers and protected by a surrounding sunken fence.

It is really the only important monument to Gray in existence. A vast sum was once collected under pretense of a building fund in memory of Gray, at Pembroke Hall at Cambridge, where he was for years one of the most illustrious ornaments of the classic town. "Indeed," says so excellent an authority as Gosse, "if strangers did not periodically inquire (at Cambridge) for his room, it is probable that the name of Gray would be as completely forgotten at Pembroke as at Peterhouse (from which his cold bath at the hands of roistering fellow commoners one January night in 1756 had driven him), where also no monument of any kind preserves the record of his presence."

The inscriptions on the four sides are in keeping with the spirit of the spot and at once emphasize in the visitor's mind the close and loving association of poet, poetry and place. On the side facing the south approach is the following:

This Monument, in honor of
THOMAS GRAY,
Was Erected A. D. 1799
Among the scenery
Celebrated by that great Lyric and Elegiac Poet,
He died in 1771,
And lies unnoted in the adjoining Churchyard,
Under the Tombstone on which he piously
And pathetically recorded the interment
Of his Aunt and lamented Mother.

The other three inscriptions are from the "Ode to Eton College" and the "Elegy."

From your present station at the monument you have only to turn and face the west for as sweet a prospect—one altogether hidden as you entered the lodge gate—as ever human eyes beheld. Across a lawnlike open field of clover—almost musical from the hum of murmuring bees—is seen, to the right, the remaining huge gables and chimneys, almost completely covered with ivy, of old Stoke Hall, the ancient manor house. Here once lived the noble families of the Huntingdons, the Cokes and the Cobhams. Daws chatter about the old chimneys and gossip in the branches of the lofty trees. Ancient greatness and stateliness, with picturesque and even winsome decay, charm the onlooker in every view of old Stoke Hall.

To the left, and somewhat farther away, across gently rolling and velvety lawns, the beautiful vista being bounded on either side by some of the richest park forestry in England, is seen the dazzlingly white outlines of the splendid Stoke Hall of today. Before it, and still to the south, a gleam of shimmering blue hints of an extensive artificial sheet of water. Behind it, to the right, is a lofty pillar nearly 100 feet in height, surmounted by a heroic figure of Sir Edward Coke.

Through marriage he was once lord of Stoke Manor. But the princely manor house which ends the vista, and whose white colonnades give the impression that lawn and forest enchant the eye to rest upon some far, fair palace built by fairy hands, was the work of the Penn family, principally of John Penn, the Founder's second son by his second wife. An American's vivid fancy prompts a proprietary or kindred feeling here, and you are heartily glad you can find in England better memorial of this great family than the tablet of Admiral Penn in St. Mary Radcliffe Church, Bristol, or the grass choked grave of the grand old Quaker, William Penn, in lonely Jordan's Meeting House graveyard.

Squarely before you, to the west, not 500 yards away, an exquisite gem of scenic reality in the setting of this unequaled rural scene, stands old Stoke Poges Church, surrounded by its hallowed churchyard, fadeless in the memory and heart of man for just four lines of the tenderest poetry ever penned:

Beneath those rugged elms, that yew tree's shade,
Where heaves the turf in many a mould'ring heap,
Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.

At no Old World shrine will your heart so leap and thrill with supremely gratified expectancy. There is elation, indeed intoxication, in the perfection of your realization. I am sure your experience is an universal one. Expressions falling from the lips of differing types of Americans in my presence, on different occasions, fully illustrate this. One was by a prim Ohio matron, who looked upon the old and new manor houses and then the little church and yard in a matter of fact way for a time, and then said briskly to her handsome daughter standing near:

"If Gray had ever written about this place different than he did he would have been a plaguy fool, and that's all I've got to say about it!"

A plain New England "schoolma'am" came. She had walked from Slough to save carriage hire. She had saved and scrimped many years to get to a few of these Old World shrines.

"Oh," she said, with tears of joy filling her gray, fine eyes, "to have worked and saved my whole life, with the surety of finding it so true to my heart picture of it all, would have indeed been a lifelong pleasure!"

A wealthy ranchman from Wyoming who came in a carriage, mind you, and "tipped" everything and everybody from Slough to Stoke, not forgetting myself in his kindly feeling, because I was able to point out a few trifling things he might have overlooked, voiced the same idea in a different way:

"I used to 'parse' that stuff of Gray's when I was a boy down in our Mohawk valley village school till the infernal 'glimmering landscape' of every kind of grammar was eternally fading from my sight. But it worked up a regular longing to some time come and sort of stand around where Gray loafed. Now that I'm here the whole thing takes hold of me hard. My friend, that fellow Gray, 'rounded up' things here square!"

And so he did. Poetry is truly revelation through melodious words. But it must be true, not false, revealment.

You will saunter lovingly among the graves for a little, meantime getting acquainted with old Joseph Lovell, for many, many years the sexton here, and his wife; both nearly seventy years of age, but chirpy as crickets and brown and hard as nuts. They are making a bit of hay among the mounds, as is their right and their only fee, aside from that from burials, for which Joseph gets "four bob (shillings) fur th' big uns an two fur the little uns."

The church itself is a little odd jumble of stone and wood, low and wide, with two low gables facing the east and gradually merging into one peak at the west end. It has one of the oddest south porches to be found in England. On the north side is a huge, low tower, nearly as large as the body of the church, from the top of whose crumbling Norman battlements rises a tall and very slender wooden spire. The entire church to above the base of the spire is massed and matted with ivy, and is an inspiring picture of mellow antiquity and hallowed repose.

At the east end, just beneath the vestry window and but a few feet from the church wall, is the ancient low altar tomb of the Grays. On the slab is cut the famous inscription by Gray himself in memory of his aunt, Mary Antrobus, and his mother, Dorothy Gray, "the tender, careful mother of many children, ONE of whom alone had the misfortune to survive her." In this most humble tomb Gray lies. Again the friendly hand of a Penn is seen in the tablet opposite in the old church wall, recording the fact of Gray's burial here. John Penn set this tablet here eighteen years after Gray's burial, and it was the first record ever made in stone that Thomas Gray had lived and sung in England.

The old south porch is one of a few remaining curious examples—along with that at Grasmere Church, where Wordsworth is buried—of the very ancient stone porches attached to country churches. In olden times they were the gathering places of villagers. With the room formerly over them called the Parvise the whole, with the stone side seats and Piscina, formed a tiny chapel, in which rustic marriages were solemnized. You will linger long with it, for it not only conjures olden wraiths of this ilk, but you are sitting in the very shade of that "yew tree" commemorated in the "Elegy." Its broad branches reach to the quaint gable above you and droop as if in benignant and loving protection upon the hallowed spot. For where you now sit once sat Thomas Gray, attuning his pensive lyre to deathless song.

The interior of this ancient church is very quaint and simple. Three strange five angled arches divide the narrow side aisles from the nave, the timbered vault of which is partly supported by four huge crossbeams of oak. The pews are as straight and narrow and as grotesquely carved as any I have elsewhere found in England. An ancient stone font, lined with lead and undoubtedly 500 years old, stands in the center of the nave and above the family vault of the Penns. The basement of the tower is wholly occupied by the manor pew. Its high paneling and narrow lattice work are very quaint and odd. It is provided with settles, ottomans and a fireplace of ancient design. Curtains screen the occupants from the gaze of other worshipers. It is lighted by a tiny splayed window cut in the tower's east wall, and the lord of the manor and his family are admitted through a prisonlike door beneath outer crumbling steps, up which the change ringers, led by old Joseph Lovell, the sexton, ascend, when they doff their coats for the merry work in the 160 changes upon the chime of six sweetly musical bells.

Aside from the manorial pew the only spacious pew in Stoke Poges Church is the Gray family pew, now occupied by the Allhusen heirs, who are also owners of the now handsome West End Cottage, a mile north of the church, which was Gray's home during his residence at Stoke Poges. It is the sunniest, coziest place in the little church and stands in the west end of the south aisle. Above it on the one side is a double lancet stained glass window with a representation of Christ blessing little children, and on the other, along the south wall, is a huge Penn tablet, commemorating the burial within this church of Thomas Penn, son of William Penn, of his (Thomas') wife, the Right Hon. Lady Juliana Penn, third daughter of Thomas, first Earl of Pomfret, of their sons, John and Granville Penn, of the wife of the latter and of their three sons and four daughters.

Somehow there is here and all about Stoke Poges an indissoluble linking of the memory of the pensive poet and the kindred of the grand old Quaker chieftain. Perhaps to you and I as Americans it draws more close the kindly spell which broods upon the church, churchyard and silent, sylvan scene of the "Elegy." But you can hardly leave the sweet old spot until the shadows have fallen, and, your whole being filled with the tender spirit of the place, your heart rather than your inarticulate lips utter those lines of graven soul in liquid song:

Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight,
And all the air a solemn stillness holds,
Save where the beetle wheels his droning flight
And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds.

Medical Evidence In Its Favor.

The best medical men in England, Canada and the United States, favor the use of Lactated Food. They agree that mothers should feed it to their infants if they are unable to nurse them properly.

A prominent Canadian physician says:—"In my opinion, the general use of Lactated Food would very largely reduce the alarming death-rate now prevalent among infants."

Dr. J. Milner Fothergill, of London, England, claims that Lactated Food is the nearest and surest approach to mother's milk, and places great value upon this valuable food as a nourisher and builder.

Lactated Food gives rest, sleep and health; and in every way promotes infantile growth and happiness.

EXCITEMENT IN COMOX.

A School Trustee Election—Weekly Paper—Killed at Comox.

UNION, Oct. 28.—An improved Shepherd coal washer, capable of washing 350 tons of coal per pay, now at Wellington, it to be sent up here, where it will be erected for use when the mines re-open.

An electric pump, never used here, has been taken down to Wellington for No. 5 shaft.

There is quite an excitement in connection with school matters in North Comox. The trustees have resigned and an election takes place on Monday. Should they be re-elected, as they undoubtedly will, it will show they have the support of the people in upholding J. N. Muir. Mr. Muir is giving general satisfaction and the Davie Government would act wisely in place of nursing its spleen, to grant Mr. Muir a temporary certificate. It could not, however, ruin the member's chances for re-election in a better way than by pursuing its present policy.

A weekly newspaper, to be called the Weekly News, is to published in Comox. The proprietor, Mr. Whitney, is an old newspaper man. He was at one time proprietor of the Steveston Enterprise, and has of late been connected with the Vancouver Telegram. The paper is bound to become popular in Comox, and when the telegraph line is completed it will undoubtedly be a success. Everything is ready for the first edition, which comes out on Wednesday.

A telegraphic dispatch brought the news that Tom Weeks, well and favorably known here, was killed while working in the mines at Canmore.

S. Milne returns by the Joan to Nanaimo. He has finished painting the schoolhouse and hospital. The work is a splendid advertisement for Mr. Milne, as it is in every way first-class.

Mr. Robson's pulpit was on Sunday occupied by the Rev. Mr. Galloway, missionary to the Indians at Cape Mudge. This was Mr. Galloway's first trip from Cape Mudge for six months. The Cape Mudge Indians are said to be the most immoral on the coast, but Mr. Galloway will no doubt by his missionary labors, and the Indian school of which he has charge, succeed in civilizing them.
